

Take a chance on the Sounds of Aloha Chorus!

One of Hawaii's best-loved choral groups is looking for some men who are willing to take a chance on fun!

In 2002, Bryce was just eight years old when he attended a Sounds of Aloha Chorus show with his youth choir. He loved what he saw and heard, but he was still young. When he was 17, he was ready and took a chance. Be like Bryce.

A few years ago, a friend told Iska he should check out the Sounds of Aloha. But he'd never sung in a chorus, he said. "They're teachers," the friend replied. It took him a few years, but last year he finally took a chance. Be like Iska.

Last year, Ronald was newly retired when he and his kids were talking about the movie "Pitch Perfect," and he decided to Google "Hawaii acappella." He found soundsofaloa.org and took a chance. Be like Ronald.

Last Christmas, Bob came to the Sounds of Aloha Christmas show, where he heard the emcee encourage men to come give what they were hearing a try. He vowed he'd be up there on stage with the chorus some day. A few months later he followed through and took a chance. Be like Bob.

Last spring, Philip was stationed to Oahu by the U.S. Air Force. He'd discovered the contemporary barbershop scene online and taught himself virtually, but he hadn't yet joined a group. So he took a chance. Be like Philip.

Last March, Joe heard the quartet 19th Avenue performing at an event at a club and struck up a conversation with them because he loved the close harmony. They said he should take a chance and try it himself. He did. Be like Joe.

Steve sang with SOA for years, but in recent years he needed to devote his time to other parts of his life. A couple of months ago, it was time to take a chance on getting music back in his life. He did. Be like Steve.

In 2014, Terence heard the quartet 19th Avenue sing with Robert Cazimero in the Hawaii Kalikimaka show at the Hawaii Theatre. This past summer he recalled that performance when he saw an ad for the Sounds of Aloha on Craigslist. The ad said to take a chance. He did. Be like Terence.

If you're a guy who likes to sing, come learn two songs in November and perform with the Sounds of Aloha in "An A Cappella Christmas!" on December 2 at the Paliku Theatre. You don't need to audition or join to make some great music with us!

Visit soundsofaloa.org. Take a chance.